Overall assessment: Claudia was a highly motivated course participant who made very good progress throughout the course. She planned and delivered interesting and well-structured lessons, for which she prepared activities that were suitable to her students' needs and interests. Claudia always showed a high level of commitment during both methodological and practical sessions, as well as a good degree of self-assessment. She was keen to cooperate with her colleagues and she was able to create an enjoyable atmosphere during her classes. Her written assignment was of a high standard.

Lesson preparation: Claudia was always detailed in her planning. During the training she learned to become aware of the different objectives of each activity and to incorporate both communicative and linguistic targets in her lesson plans. She was able to balance controlled and free practices in her lessons. She designed suitable and motivating materials for her classes, which included spoken and written activities, games and grammar analysis.

Teaching skills: Her presentation skills are very good and her approach is student-centred. Claudia quickly assimilated and put into practice a variety of techniques discussed in the methodology sessions. She presented with confidence a good variety of activities which ranged from controlled to free spoken and written practices, and she always encouraged an enjoyable and fun learning environment. She learned to give clear instructions and to monitor and correct her students sensibly.

Capacity for self-appraisal and teamwork: Claudia enjoyed working in a team and she was always keen to accept and give help. She had a mature approach to the feedback sessions, making very helpful comments and asking relevant questions to the tutors and to the other members of the group. She always showed to be aware of her potential and points to work on in the future.
